"We Neuro-Ophthalmologists are the pride of practitioners. And we are family. As such it is up to us to plan for, nurture and protect future generations. We must not fall prey to what transpired in Ocular Pathology, a sub-specialty bordering on extinction. We need to advocate, educate and demonstrate our value both to our patients and other health care providers. NANOS is our mechanism to do so. NANOS speaks for us, promotes us and encourages us. We must reciprocate this special relationship."
- Barrett Katz

"The NANOS meeting is the best professional meeting on the planet and a family reunion. We accomplish incredible things together. I give because I am so grateful for what NANOS gives to me." Deborah Friedman (NANOS San Antonio 2012)

"I give to NANOS because of what NANOS gives to its members. It provides a forum to improve patient care, education, research, and collaboration among like-minded colleagues who share a mutual passion of neuro-ophthalmology."
John Chen (NANOS Tuscon 2016)

"My reasons for giving to NANOS are pretty simple. Just as much of the work of the Society is done by volunteers from the Membership, the funds necessary to take on new initiatives often come as pilot funds donated by forward thinking members. A good example is the NOVEL project, that has benefited from volunteer member donations to allow it to expand its offerings without large increases in its Society budget item."
Preston Calvert (NANOS Las Vegas 2019)

"My involvement with NANOS and its predecessor organizations spans 40 years. NANOS provides superb clinical education without relying on Pharma support. Starting with small yearly gifts which have grown over time, I can now to be more supportive. We are all inundated with requests for money, but my support of NANOS is money well spent as I invest in the future of neuro-ophthalmology."
Ben Frishberg (NANOS San Diego 2015)

"NANOS is my professional family. I try to pay it forward and pay it back where I can. This organization has fostered an enormous amount of career fulfillment and growth, and I want to continue to promote that in myself and in my colleagues."
Kim Wings (NANOS Amelia Island 2020)

"I LOVE giving to NANOS. NANOS is THE organization for neuro-ophthalmology world-wide and it connects the world with neuro-ophthalmic resources. NOVEL...provides education for everyone—students, residents, seasoned clinicians and even patients. NANOS initiatives advance our practice, advocacy and reach, relying solely on the generosity of our members' time. If our members are giving freely of their time to support NANOS, all of us can help increase resources to keep moving neuro-ophthalmology and NANOS forward."
- Kathleen Digre, a proud giver (NANOS Park City 1991)
